A professor makes fun of their religion in class, and singles them out to answer questions and humiliates them.

A Teaching Assistant or Resident Assistant shows them unwanted romantic or sexual attention, even after the student has indicated a lack of interest.

Something happens on campus that makes them feel like they have been attacked or threatened because of their sexual orientation, gender expression, or gender identity.

They feel shut out from a classroom or campus activity because of their disability.

They believe they didn’t get a job on campus, didn’t get selected for an academic award, or were not allowed in a campus recreational activity because they are male or female.
The Office of Equal Opportunity (OEO) ensures that UNT provides equal educational opportunities for all students, and equal employment opportunities for all employees (including student employees).

One of the ways OEO does this is by investigating complaints of discrimination, harassment and retaliation – including complaints from students (whether the complaint is against another student, a faculty or staff-member, or a visitor to campus). Discrimination is prohibited by university policies*. To learn more about OEO’s investigative process, please visit our website at: http://edo.unt.edu/file-complaint.

A student who believes they have been treated badly because of their race, color, national origin, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, gender expression, age, disability, genetic information, or veteran status should contact OEO.

OEO houses the office of the university ADA/504 Coordinator – Eve Shatteen Bell, the Director of Equal Opportunity. She is responsible for coordinating UNT’s efforts to ensure equal access to persons with disabilities, tracking the university’s compliance with state and federal laws relating to persons with disabilities, and providing advice to university offices.

Students who have questions about their rights under the Americans with Disabilities Act, or Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act; concerns about academic accommodations recommended by the Office of Disability Access; or requests for training programs should please contact Eve Shatteen Bell at (940) 565-2759 or at oeo@unt.edu.

* The university policies OEO oversees are the Prohibition of Discrimination, Harassment, and Retaliation policy (16.004); Sexual Harassment (16.005); Prohibition of Sexual Assault and Retaliation (12.005); and Disability Accommodation for Students and Academic Units (16.001). Employees should also be mindful of the Employment of Individuals with Disabilities/Workplace Accommodations policy (05.011).
